LiUNA's Joseph Mancinelli praises Patrick Brown's leadership on jobs and city-building

BRAMPTON, ON — Joseph Mancinelli, International Vice President and Regional Manager of the Laborers' International Union of North America (LiUNA), is praising Mayor Patrick Brown's leadership in advancing major projects and creating construction jobs in Brampton.

"We are proud to work with Mayor Patrick Brown in Brampton. From purpose built rental housing to the LRT extension to the new hospital, he has worked with LiUNA to build and grow Brampton. Under his strong leadership, he is helping to create thousands of new construction jobs while focused on transformational city-building projects," said Mancinelli.

Brown thanked Mancinelli and LiUNA for their support and partnership.

"LiUNA members are helping build Brampton's future, and I'm grateful to Joseph Mancinelli for his support," said Brown. "As our city grows, we need more housing, better transit and expanded health care. Advancing these priorities also means creating good construction jobs and opportunities for working families."

Brown reaffirmed his commitment to working with labour, industry and other levels of government to move Brampton's major projects forward.

"We have important work ahead to deliver the infrastructure our residents need," added Brown. "I will continue advocating for investment in Brampton and working with partners like LiUNA to turn those investments into lasting benefits for our community."

About LiUNA

The Laborers' International Union of North America represents approximately half a million workers across Canada and the United States. Its members work in construction, energy and public services, helping build and maintain essential infrastructure. For more information, visit liuna.org.
